W: May I take your order?

C: Can you recommend any dish?

W: No problem. I highly recommend our beef spaghetti.

C: Ok, two orders.

W: Would you like to have some drinks?

C: Give me two glasses of juice.

W: No problem. Is there anything else you would like?

C: No, that's all.

C: Wait! Hey, Fetch me some napkins.

W: Sure.

Ann and Tina are classmates but not very close. Ann plans to go mountain-climbing tomorrow, and she needs to borrow a compass from Tina.

At the classroom

Ann: Hello! Tina, I am going to go mountain-climbing tomorrow with my boyfriend.

Tina: Wow. That sounds very interesting!

Ann: Yes, I think it will be. But, I am afraid that we will get lost in the mountains.

So, lend me your compass for mountain-climbing tomorrow, OK?

Tina: Sure, here you go.

Ann: Thanks a lot.

You are taking a bus to school in early morning, You feel tired and gradually fall asleep when staying in your seat. At this time, a young man sitting next to you is talking loudly on the cellphone. His noise wakes you up, so you ask this guy to keep his voice down as soon as possible.

On the bus

You: (Feel annoyed) Excuse me, sir.

Young man: Yes?

You: We are on the bus, not your place. You need to keep your voice down.

Young man: Oh! I am sorry. I didn't realize I was speaking so loudly.

Ruby wants to have a pet as her birthday present. She asks her father if he could buy her a cat. Ruby and her father are not always very close to each other.

In the living room

Ruby :[In a cold tone] Dad, my birthday is coming soon. You have to buy me a gift. I need a cat to accompany me.

Father: Um... Well, we may go to a pet store to see if there is a cat you like.

Ruby: [Not very excited] Thank you. I will choose one anyway.
